

WHO CAN THIS MAN BE?

Sheila was coming back home after spending ten hours at the hospital working as a nurse. She felt absolutely tired because it had been an awful day. She arrived home and after a light meal, she decided to go to bed even though it was still too early. She fell asleep quickly.

She had left her parents' house to set up a new life in a delightful small flat. Sheila had been living there for just two months and obviously she did not know her neighbours. For that, she felt astonished when at 7 o'clock in the morning the doorbell rang.

She woke up asking herself, "Who the hell calls at this hour"? She got up and her surprise was massive when through the peephole she saw that there was a man who was naked!! Who can this man be? Sheila wondered as she looked at the stranger standing at the front door.

Sheila went back to bed but five minutes later, the doorbell rang again. She did not know what to do if calling to the police or to ignore it. She decided to take another glance and then, she saw the man was trying to open the neighbour's door with a piece of carton.

In that moment, Sheila realized he was her neighbour and immediately she opened the door and offered him a bathrobe. He was extremely embarrassed about the situation.

Eventually, he explained to her that he had confused the toilets door and the street one. The ashamed man gave her an apologize and then phoned a locksmith.